

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: For what kind of products I can use the KeepItFresh application?

A: Basically, you can use the app for any type of products wherever you need to keep track of its freshness. You can create your own categories of products on the Settings page, for example, ‘food’, ‘household products’, ‘beauty product’ and so forth.

Q: How do I know when my product is expired?

A: KeepItFresh application provides an email notification service. If you want to receive emails about expiring products, you need to go to the Settings page and enter your email. You can also set a number which indicates how many days before a product reaches its expiration date you want to get an additional email to inform you about approaching to the expiration date.

Q: Does the application delete my expired product automatically?

A: KeepItFresh does not delete your product automatically when it reaches its expiration date. You can delete it by pressing the Delete button.

Q: Can I get email notifications to several email addresses?

A: Yes, you can enter as many email addresses as you wish on the Settings page.

Q: Does the application organize my products in the table?

A: By default the products in the table are sorted by Expiration Date in ascending order. There is also a sorting function which helps you to sort your products by Name, Category, Quantity and Expiration Date.

Q: May I edit the information about a product I after I added it?

A: Yes, on the Home page there is the ‘EDIT’ button next to the product and you can edit it as many times as you want.

Q: What if I have two identical bottles on the shelf with different expiration dates? How can I recognize it in the app?

A: In this case we recommend you to add some helpful information in the ‘Name of product’ field in order to distinguish two products with identical names. For example, you can specify if a product is open or not, or specify a shelf where you keep. In the future we are going to provide a barcode feature to identify products by its barcodes.

Q: Can I input an information about items in the app in languages other than English?

A: Yes, you can input information about items in any language you would like to and you will not get an error in this case. Also you can use numbers, punctuation or any other signs that you will find appropriate for description of your items.
